On Monday next, November 12th, the COURIER office will be removed from the quarters occupied by it for the last fifteen years to the new buildings just erected for our especial use and accommodation, on Green street, next to the Custom House and Post Office, and nearly opposite the Journal office. Then and thereafter we will always be pleased to see our friends and patrons at our new locality.

Tennessee Election.

Editors Louisville Courier: The Bell men here claim Tennessee with great confidence. I think the result very doubtful. B.

The Result in Kentucky.

Our news and telegraph columns afford the latest returns of the election in Kentucky. Mr. Bell has certainly carried the State, but we cannot hazard an opinion as to the majority. The vote of Mr. Douglas can hardly exceed 20,000 in the State.

THEATER.—The attendance at the Theater last night was quite an improvement on that of the night before. The play of Brian Boroihme is an excellent piece of its class, was well put upon the stage, and the characters well cast and well played by the whole strength of the company. The farces went off amidst shouts of laughter, as all the farces have done this season. Smith is a gem of a low comedian, and is thoroughly appreciated by our fun-loving audiences. Dickson's eccentric comedy, in the Man without a Head, was as clever a piece of acting as we have seen for a long time. Miss Ruth, the charming little soubrette, played a bit of walking lady part in a manner which still further strengthened the favorable impression already made by her. She is a very valuable acquisition to the company. Mrs. Hale made her first, and, we trust her last, appearance on the Louisville boards.

To-night, by particular request of a large number of the patrons of the theater, the beautiful play of the "Mineral" will be repeated. It is a play of absorbing interest, and, performed as it is by the stock company, is much more worthy of the public attention than not a few of the pieces which have heretofore been produced by some of the stars.

On Friday night, a complimentary benefit will be given to Mrs. Lorton, which promises to bring out, from present indications, the very best house of the season.

LA RUE'S PANOPTICON—LAST THREE DAYS.—Mozart Hall was crowded to its utmost capacity last night, with an enthusiastic audience, to witness this wonderful entertainment, in which the art of the painter and mechanician speaks to the mind and heart of every spectator. We have been informed by the proprietor that it would afford him pleasure to continue the representation in Louisville another week, but that the hall has been previously engaged, and he is compelled to bring his popular representations to a close on Saturday night. The Panopticon has been visited by more people than any other one entertainment ever given in this city, which speaks well for the taste and intelligence of our citizens. As a literal imitation of nature, and the stirring events of war, nothing can equal Mr. La Rue's Panoptieon of India. Reality could never wear an air more real, truth could not be truthful. Indeed it is without a blemish or a spot on which to rest a cavil or raise a doubt. We would advise our friends to be early in attendance if they wish to secure a seat, for Mozart is nightly crowded this week, at the reduced admission price of 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children and servants.

☞ We again remind our readers, and all in want of elegant furniture, that Mr. C. C. Spencer sells this morning, Mr. Ellis' household effects. A finer lot of furniture than this has never before been offered at auction in this city. The piano is all it is represented to be, and the sale will be imperative, as Mr. E. is quitting housekeeping.

MONKEY KILLED.—As an Italian organ-grinder, with his monkey, was playing at Mr. Slaughter's, on the Point, a dog of the proprietor jumped at and caught the monkey, tearing it to pieces.

☞ Messrs. S. G. Henry & Co. will sell this morning (Thursday) at 10 o'clock, at auction rooms, a general assortment of parlor, dining room, and chamber furniture; parlor, sewing, and rocking chairs; also, a large lot of second hand furniture, by order of administrator.

THE ORPHAN'S GARLAND.—This is the title of a beautiful little paper which is published every night during the continuance of the Orphan's Fair at Masonic Temple. The typography is fine, and the original matter exhibits excellent taste and propriety. It reflects great credit on its editors, Mrs. McGill and Mrs. McIlvaine.

FIRE.—About one o'clock yesterday morning a fire broke out in some bed clothing in the house of Mr. Hannenberger, on Twelfth street, between Market and Jefferson, but was extinguished before any damage was done.

☞ Change is a good thing, if you only go from good to better. The painted photographs that are now being made at Elrod's Gallery throws Healy's best in the background. Yesterday was a busy day with Elrod; we venture to say that he does not even know who is elected President.

☞ Silks! Silks!! Shawls! Shawls!! Merinoes! Merinoes!! Cloth and Velvet Mantels and Cloaks; Ladies' and Gentlemen's Cloths, fine Black and other colors; Printed Cashmere and Merinoes, Rept Velours, figured and plain Merinoes, Plaids, and 500 pieces of other kinds of Dress Goods; Ladies' and Gentlemen's underwear, Hosiery, Gloves, Embroideries, Laces, French Embroidered and Laces Collars, Linen and Lace Sets, Hoop Skirts, Men's and Boy's wear, Bed Blankets, Flannels, Linen Sheetings and Shirtings, Shirting Cottons, &c., all of which will be sold at the New York Store, the present week, at lower prices than the same quality of goods have ever been offered in this city under any circumstances.

DEAD.—Miller, the coffee house keeper whom Col. Ruckstuhl shot some weeks since, died yesterday from the wound. It was thought he would recover, but inflammation ensued, which resulted as above.

HORRIBLE SUICIDE.—Moses Hull, living near Tilton in Fleming county, Ky., committed suicide on Sunday the 4th inst., by cutting his throat from ear

DAILY COURIER.

LOUISVILLE.

THURSDAY MORNING.....NOV. 8.

To Our Friends—The Weekly Courier.

In a few days we part with thousands of our campaign subscribers. If our labors in behalf of the glorious principles of the Democratic party, in behalf of the equality of the States, in behalf of the Union, have met with their approbation, we trust they will not be indisposed to continue the intercourse between us by renewing their subscriptions, and that they will give the WEEKLY COURIER the benefit of their influence, and aid the cause of truth by sending us with their own names those of their neighbors and friends who have not heretofore read our paper.

The present posture of affairs indicates that we are on the eve of great events.—More than one of the sovereign States are so dissatisfied with the attitude of the triumphant party in the recent election as to seriously meditate a resort to extreme measures for the maintenance of their rights. There will probably, almost certainly, be State conventions held, called-meetings of State Legislatures, and political convulsions throughout the country.—In a few weeks Congress will assemble; and the gravest matters affecting the public weal will demand the attention of the Federal Legislature. In but a few months ABRAHAM LINCOLN will be inaugurated President, and a new policy, for weal or woe, will be adopted in the national administration. Every man who feels an interest in the affairs of the country, now needs an enterprising, faithful, and reliable newspaper. No one who is not willing to live in ignorance of events transpiring around him, affecting the dearest interests of all who boast the name of American citizens will be without such a paper.

That the WEEKLY COURIER will furnish the latest news in regard to everything transpiring in our own country or abroad that can be of interest to the public, we need give no other assurance than the reputation it has fairly won during the eighteen years of its existance, and the pledge that all a liberal expenditure, industry, application, and ceaseless energy can accomplish will be done to make it the medium for the communication of intelligence to the people of the whole country, and particularly to those living in Kentucky and the South and West.

The aim, character, reputation, and cheapness of the WEEKLY COURIER are such as to commend it to those who want a reliable family journal, while its popularity justifies it in claiming to be the People's Paper; and this claim it will maintain by increased diligence in adapting it to the wants of all classes, and a determined effort to make it indispensable to every one who would be well informed.

The present is an auspicious time for those to subscribe who, not having done so, wish to begin so as to keep posted in the events of the most important period in the existence of the country; and we will be obliged to such of our friends as will use a little effort just now in extending its circulation in their respective neighborhoods. Our arrangements in the new office, to which we shall remove during the present week, are such as to enable us to promptly supply any demand that may be made for the WEEKLY COURIER; and twenty thousand new subscribers will be a most gratifying assurance that our friends and the people of the whole country are satisfied with our course during the ardnous political canvass just closed.

Lincoln's Election—His Position and the Policy of his Administration.

There is no longer ground for hope.—LINCOLN, the candidate and representative of Black Republicanism, is certainly the President elect of the United States. The anti-slavery party, twenty years ago a weak, despised, and powerless faction, without a majority in any State, district, county, or township in the United States, with its views and professed aims but slightly modified, has overspread the larger portion of the Union; and the appearances now indicate that all of the non-slaveholding States have cast their votes for Mr. LINCOLN, who is elected against the emphatic protest and earnest remonstrance of all the slaveholding States. For the first time in the history of the country, that calamity so much feared by WASHINGTON and JEFFERSON and the statesmen of their day, is upon us: a strictly sectional political organization has been formed, and its success has sent alarm throughout nearly half the States of the Union and stricken with fear the honest patriots of the whole country—the BUCHANANS, the PIERCES, the CASSES, the BIGLERS, the DICKENSONS, the BRADLEYS, the BRIGHTS, the CUSHINGS, and the gallant statesmen who stand by them for the Constitution.

What is to be the result of the success of the anti-slavery party on Tuesday last?—What will the Southern States do? What will be the course of the incoming national Administration? What is to be the future of our beloved country?

These questions are of great moment, not less to the people of the slaveholding States, who are more directly interested, than to the people of the free States, who owe their prosperity and present position to their connection in the Union with the South.

There is great alarm and feeling throughout all the South, and by many it is believed that the cotton-producing States will regard the success of the Black Republican party as a declaration of war against their Constitutional rights and domestic institutions, and as once take steps for a withdrawal from the Federal Union. We, of course, cannot speak for the States to which we refer, and our means of knowing the sentiments prevailing among the people thereof is not sufficient to justify us in predicting whether they will resort to extreme measures at once, or not. The momentous consequences which must necessarily follow such action on their part cannot be overlooked by those even who deem that this point is at last reached when forbearance has ceased to be a virtue, and will not be without effect on them. Duty to themselves, the obligations they owe those with whom they have heretofore been connected by the closest political ties, and a decent regard for the opinions of mankind, not less than their own dignity and self-respect and interest, combine to impose upon them the propriety of a deliberate, prudent and moderate course. They will not, we believe, be unmindful of what they owe to themselves and others; and whatever may be their ultimate determination and final action, we have confidence they will not rashly and unthoughtedly precipitate the nation into difficulties, the end of which we cannot foresee.

What will Mr. LINCOLN do? What is he disposed to do? for he will really be without power to do anything, at least during the first years of his Administration. The Senate is Democratic, and the majority of that body, who have been individually and collectively denounced as traitors worthy of death by the Union-shriekers of the BELL wing of the Opposition and the Squatters of the DOUGLAS school, is a breakwater against which, while constituted as at present, the waves of fanaticism may dash in vain: again, as has so often been the case, the hated, despised, abused, and calumniated Democracy is almost the only and last hope of the country! Now, when the friends of Mr. BELL are powerless and utterly impotent for good, and when the Douglasites can do nothing, nothing at all to check or stem the torrent that threatens to overwhelm all we love and hope for, the BRECKINRIDGE men alone have the power to make even a show of opposition to the fanatics of the Abolitionists. If they do not save the Union and preserve the Constitution, no power on earth can!

But what will Mr. LINCOLN try to do? What policy will control his administration? This is an important question. It has been given out, of late, that Mr. LINCOLN will not attempt to carry out the principles of his party; that he will respect the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States; that he will respect all the constitutional rights of the slave States; that he will enforce rigidly the Fugitive Slave Law; that he will not seek directly or indirectly to interfere with slavery in the States or where it now exists—that he, in short, will rise superior to the demands of sectionalism, of fanaticism, and of party, and obey in its letter and spirit the oath that will be administered to him on entering upon the discharge of the duties of the responsible office to which he has been chosen. Will he do this? Can he do it? Is he equal to a course of action that will array against him the most formidable opposition from among those whose votes elected him and upon whose support he is dependent? Will he, at the cost of present popularity, prove himself a real statesman, and earn the gratitude of all patriotic Americans and immortalize his name?

We have little hope that he can bring himself to look beyond the present and to work for the approbation of posterity—that he will abandon the principles upon which he was elected, and forsake his party associations;—and yet this is necessary to the maintenance of the Constitution and the preservation of the Union! The most that can be expected of the slaveholding States—the most that is hoped of them—is, that they will not at once withdraw from the Federal Union; that they will await to see whether their rights as equal States will be respected and the provisions of the Constitution faithfully carried out. Mr. LINCOLN cannot shut his eyes to the situation of affairs in the States; and should he be inaugurated as President of the Union as it now stands, he will be called upon to determine the fate of the Confederacy, for if no extreme steps be taken before that time, the first infraction of the Constitution by a Black Republican administration would be the signal for a disruption of the Union, and no power under Heaven could postpone the evil day one hour.

The times are full of danger. To guide the ship of State safely through the perils that surround it, requires wisdom, prudence, firmness, courage, patriotism, and the thousandest statesmanship. Whether those who are to control our destiny, are equal to the dreadful emergency, is the question that deeply concerns every American citizen, and on the solution of which depends the hopes of the people of the whole country. The Union can only be maintained on the basis of the Constitution. Not one man in any one of the thirty-three States in the confederacy desires a dissolution of the Union: not one will consent to a breaking up of the confederacy if the Constitution be upheld and its guarantees respected: not one asks more than an assurance that the rights of the States and of the citizens shall be conceded and protection given thereto: and we solemnly believe, that, in view of recent events, nothing short of this will satisfy the South and save the Union.

About the Fate of Mexico.

We have again approached that season of the year, says an exchange, when the affairs of our distracted neighbor, the Republic of Mexico, are wont to engage the attention of a large portion of our people. The foreign fleets, which annually keep watch in these waters, have already rendezvoused in unusual numbers and uncommon strength at Vera Cruz; the foreign ministers have, most of them, returned to their posts, and everything now indicates a more than usually active whizz of diplomatic intrigue at one capital, and overbearing insolence at the other, which may, before it closes, decide the fate of the whole country, whether it be for weal or woe.

The events which have transpired in Mexico during the past summer have not been few or wanting in significance, and the approaching season, if it does not open with entirely new prospects, at all events presents many a clearer view. We have been called upon successively to record the triumph of the Federal arms near San Luis Potosi; their reverses a few weeks afterwards, not far from the scene of their recent triumph; their subsequent recovery and victory at Lagos; the siege and capture of Guadalajara; and finally the concentration of troops for the march on the capital. We have had the rebellion of a portion of the army North, the civil war in the States of New Leon, of Coahuila, Sonora, Ojaca and Yucatan, the rebellion in Chihuahua and the depredations of the Indians in that distracted State, and innumerable treasons against State and Federal authority throughout the length and breadth of the land. And finally, we have had the threatening appearance of the Spanish squadron before Vera Cruz, the intrigues of the Spanish, French and English Ministers, acting separately or together, as at any time it was for their interests at the capital, propositions for a peace, propositions for a truce, propositions for a congress, and, with all this, counter intrigues of ambitious factions, each trying to overreach the other, but all resulting only in plunging the distracted republic in a still deeper and more hopeless confusion and anarchy than ever.

And yet, as we said above, in the midst of all this darkness we get many clearer glimpses of the truth and of the future in Mexico than we have ever had before. We have approached one year nearer the end to which all things there inevitably tend and that year has been one of fearful rapidity in the development and succession of events. Never, perhaps, has the history of the world presented an instance of more rapid degeneracy and decline. Twelve months ago, though distracted by civil war, we still looked upon the Mexican people as a people of honor, whom, in the common business of life, at least, we could trust. There were still several great banking houses with untarnished credit at the capital; mercantile houses in all parts of the country doing, if not a large, at least a creditable business; the rich mines of the interior were being worked as before, and their products transported periodically, by armed conductas, it is true, but still safely to their various places of shipment. But now all this is changed. The oldest and most experienced banking houses of the Republic, in which all Europe trusted with the utmost confidence, have broken down; all foreign capital has been withdrawn; mercantile houses of every description have suspended and in immense numbers everywhere; the soil is uncultivated, and the mines for the most part unworked, or if worked at all their products are seized and confiscated; the Federal and State treasuries are exhausted; forced levies and exactions of all kinds are made; even the sacred plate is stolen from the altars of the churches and melted up or sold at an enormous sacrifice; in fact it would seem as if no people could reach a lower depth of national and individual degeneracy, certainly no people have ever gone down more rapidly or shamelessly.

The great truth to be drawn from all this, and certainly none who are acquainted with the Mexican people or Mexican affairs can fail to draw it, is that this so called Republic is tending inevitably towards a state of anarchy, is already in a state of demoralization, from which it can never of itself recover. It never did have the essential elements of a healthy state of society, or the bonds of a healthy and stable government. The necessary middle class of industrious agriculturists and intelligent artisans were always wanting, while the dominant race of the upper class were long since demoralized by idleness, plunder, and civil war. A portion of them, perhaps, have sought and really understand the liberal ideas of the age, but most of them are plunged in irremediable ignorance and prejudice.

The national policy, therefore, was should adopt, at the opening of another year of rapid decline in Mexico, is made clearer by events that cannot be misunderstood, than ever. It is one that looks sooner or later to the ultimate possession of the country, and that only. Mexico cannot much longer retain even the forms of a civilized government herself, nor can we permit any other flag than our own to be extended over her. This is our clear, just, and straightforward course, dictated by every sense of honor and interest. We have work, no entangling alliances. They are equally out of harmony with our character as a people, and with our theory of government. We may for the time being, and it is our duty, extend our sympathy to that portion of this unhappy people who breathe most truly the spirit of republican liberty, but we should never lose sight of the fact, made clear by a long and a sad history, that the inevitable course of events there is downwards, and that the end is near.

Decline in the Old States.

The returns of the census exhibit some results that were unexpected. Though the final footings are not prescribed so as to enable a contrast in all the elements of human industry to be carefully made, enough is known to lead us to suspect that the deductions to be drawn from the facts collected will overthrow many theories in regard to population and progress which have had most currency. In the New England States, little advance is noted. Losses and hard times have diminished the value of property, and the census shows but little increase of population over that returned in 1850.

In 1840 New England is reported as producing 2,000,000 bushels of wheat. In 1850 they yielded but 1,000,000—a decline of fifty per cent. It is believed that the census of 1860 will show a still more marked decline than was noted in the previous decade.

In New York the number of sheep has decreased more than 500,000 in thirty years, and within four years the decrease is said to be near fifty per cent., while the decline in the number of other species of stock will probably not be less than fifteen per cent. New York produced in 1845, 13,391,700 bushels of wheat, but last year her product of this staple fell as low as 6,000,000 bushels.

It is plain that there is a point reached in population and value of realestate when States annually send forth swarms of emigrants to the new and cheap lands of the wilderness, thus building up new States with such magic speed. It begins to be demonstrated by the statistics of population, that the question of price of land governs the direction of emigrants more than the character of the institutions of a new State.

The employment of slave labor involves the necessity of large plantations, instead of small farms, and the occupancy of large tracts prevents that dense population of whites found in the free States. But this does not diminish the prosperity of the State, or reduce its productive capacity.—It is really a question of doubt whether a country sparsely populated by whites, yet cultivated by slave labor, does not soon attain a higher fixed value and make a more valuable annual return than one possessing equal advantages wholly cultivated by white freemen. The census now about to be completed will furnish some interesting facts bearing on this subject.

The Vote in 1848, in 1852, and in 1856.

MISDIRECTED SAGACITY.—There is nothing more widely misleading than sagacity, if it happens to get in the wrong scent, and sagacity, persuaded that men usually act and speak from distinct motives, with a consciously proposed end in view, is certain to waste its energies on long, airy game. Plotting sorcerousness and deliberate contrivance, in order to compass a selfish end, are nowhere abundant but in the world of the dramatist; they demand too intense a mental action for many of our fellow-bipeds to be guilty of them. It is easy enough to spoil the lives of our neighbors, without taking so much trouble; we can do it by lazy acquiescence and lary omissions, by trivial falsities for which we hardly know a reason, by small faults manufactured by small arrangements, by maladroit flatteries and clumsily improvised insinuations. We live from hand to mouth, most of us, with a small family of immediate desires, we do little else than snatch a morsel to satisfy the hungry brood, rarely thinking of sowing corn or the next year's crop.—[The Mill on the Floss.

THE BRODERICK WILL CASE IN CALIFORNIA.—The will of the late Senator David C. Broderick, which gives to John McGlynn ten thousand dollars, and the balance of the property to George Wilkes, of New York, was admitted to probate in San Francisco, California, on the 5th inst., by Judge Blake. The effect of the probate is to declare the will valid, and enable the executors to act under it. The property of Mr. Broderick is supposed to be worth $300,000, and the first thing proposed to be done by the executors is to pay off the debts.

☞ The diamonds belonging to the crown of France are 16,313 in number, weighing 18,752 carats, and worth $9,308,250 francs—about $4,000,000.

☞ After an experience of one year in putting up Vulcanita Base, Messrs. Flint & Fulton are more fully prepared to indorse its claims of superiority to everything else as a base for Artificial Teeth. When they introduced it in Louisville they advertised it as Rubber. That it was one half lighter than metal, more cleanly, and that they were more certain of getting a perfect fit of the mouth. They now go further, and say that it is much stronger than sets on metal, and less liable to be injured by accident, while the low price brings it within the reach of all. Believing that their efforts to give the best work at small profits will be appreciated, they have determined on a reduction of their prices. To substantiate the above they pledge themselves to replace with gold, without extra charge, any set on Vulcanite that fails in any one particular as set forth above. They still put up the gold work for those who desire it.

Legend of the Lady Godiva.

A gentleman who resides in this vicinity, a native of England, showed us a programme of the procession at the great Fair at Coventry, England, Monday, June 26th, 1848. It is printed on a piece of broad, superb ribbon, and is certainly the most superior thing of the kind we ever saw. We presume many of our readers will remember the legend of the Lady Godiva, in whose honor the procession was given.—The anniversary has been kept "since time immemorial" on the day, but the largest and grandest procession ever had in England was at Coventry on the occasion for which the programme we have alluded to, was printed. The legend of the "Fair Laddye" is interesting, and we give an epitome of it:

The story of Lady Godiva has been woven into poetry as well as prose, and is known the world over. Her husband, Earl Leofric, was Captain-General of all the forces under King Canute, and exercised his power in laying heavy taxes on his subjects. Those of Coventry were ground to the earth by his oppression, and though their sufferings could not move his iron heart, they filled the soul of the gentle Godiva with the deepest sorrow. Impelled by her sympathies, she constantly, but in vain, besought her lord to lessen the burdens of the people. But once, being received after a long absence with enthusiastic affection, he in his sudden joy asked her so make any request, and he would grant it. Taking advantage of his kindness, she petitioned for the subjects. The stern old earl was fairly caught, but he hoped to extricate himself by imposing a condition as brutal as it was cruel.—Knowing the modesty of his lovely wife, he promised to grant her request, provided she would ride naked through the streets of Coventry. "Anything," she replied, "for my suffering people." He was astonished; but thinking she would fail in the hour of trial, promised to fulfill his part of the contract. Godiva appointed a day, finding she was determined, he ordered the people to darken the fronts of their houses and shut themselves up, while the lady Godiva was passing. They joyfully obeyed, and the blushing, frightened beneficatress, with her long tresses streaming over her form, rode unclad through the streets. All was silent and deserted; but one man, a tailor, could not restrain his curiosity, and peeped forth from an upper window to get sight of her. In a moment Godiva's scheme was known to all its meanness.

So runs the tradition, and so it has run from time immemorial. In the time of Richard II a painting was placed in Trinity Church representing the earl and his wife—the former holding in his hand a charter, on which is inscribed,

"ELeofric, for the love of thee,
Doe make Conventrie toll-free."

HAD A "WINNING WAY" WITH HER.—A wayward son of the Emerald Isle, "left the bed and board" which he and Margaret, his wife, had occupied for a long while, and spent his time around rum-shops, where he was always on hand to count himself "in" whenever anybody should "stand treat." Margaret was dissatisfied with this state of things, and endeavored to get her husband home again. We shall see how she proceeds:

"Now Patrick, my honey, will you come back?"

"No, Margaret, I won't come back."

"And won't you come back for the love of the children?"

"Not for the love of the children, Margaret."

"Will you come back for the love of myself?"

"Niver at all, 'Way wid ye."

Margaret thought she would try another inducement. Taking a pint bottle of whisky from her pocket, and holding it up to her truant husband, she said:

"Will you come for the drop of whisky?"

"Will I not then," said Patrick, unable to withstand such temptation, "it's yersilf that'll always bring me home again—ye has such a winning way wid ye, I'll come, Margaret."

Margaret declares that "Patrick was reclaimed by moral suasion!"

ART CURIOSITIES AT A DISCOUNT.—In the sale of the late William E. Burton's library, including his valuable and varied collection in matters of virtu, we find an explanation of how one special excitement will prevail over what at another moment would form a prominent feature of itself. Matters of taste, luxury and refinement stand but a sorry chance in the conflict and agitation of political elements in New York. Another instance occurred in the autograph sale which took place on Wednesday.

The attendance was very small, and the majority present amateur collectors and dealers. The most remarkable and choice of the collection are appended, with price for which they sold. The autograph of Samuel Adams, $1; Napoleon Bonaparte, $3 75; Lord Byron, $5 12; Empress Josephine, $2 50; Henry Clay, 87 cts.; Benj. Franklin, (a letter to Arthur Lee,) $7; Fulton, (a letter with original plan of ice boats,) $7; Alex. Hamilton, $1 25; John Hancock, $1 25; Benedict Arnold, $2 50, letter and signature of Lafayette, $4 50; letter from Washington to Col. Willes, dated January 17, 1782, $14; another to Col. Jackson, $5 50.

FEVER AND AGUE, AND ALL FEVERS,
are cured by persevering with
which takes all poisons, of whatever nature they may be, from the circulation.

Mr. John Y. Haight, Superintendent of New Castle, Westchester county, New York, says, November, 1856:—"I was two years ago, attacked with fever and ague, which, notwithstanding the best medical advice, continued to orally afflict me for six teeth six months. I then tried Dr. Brandreth's Pills, and reduced to skin and bone. Medicine and physicians were abandoned in despair. As an experiment, I concluded to try a single dose of SIX of Brandreth's Universal Vegetable Pills, on an empty stomach early in the morning. The first dose seemed to arouse all to latent energies of my exhausted frame. I feared the cure; their operation was powerful, different from anything I had ever used or heard of. At length all ceased, and I seemed better and breathed easy. That evening I was indeed tranquil, but still sensibly ill. The next day I felt better, and slept soundly all night. The next day I followed the same course, and continued to take them for six days, and well much cheaper than anybody else. I must say that before I commenced dealing there, I used to get along, but ever since I commenced buying my supplies at Blanchard & Son's, I am getting rich. That's sufficient, Joe, I am convinced; I am going to patronize." s9

THE RIVER was rising steadily all day yesterday, with scant nine feet water in the canal, at dark, last night. During the previous twenty-four hours the rise at the head of the falls had been nine inches, and over two feet at Portland. On the falls there were six feet steamboat water. The weather was very cold in the morning, with heavy frosts, but more moderate last evening.

At Cincinnati, at noon yesterday, the river had risen some three feet, while at Pittsburg it was falling, with nine and a half feet water in the channel.

From the indications, we think there will be up stream water on the falls for boats to-morrow.

THE J. F. PARGOUD—NEW ORLEANS AND OUACHITA PACKET.—The finest and most complete boat that ever floated the Southern waters is the J. F. Pargoud, built expressly for the New Orleans and Ouachita trade, by Capt. John W. Tobin. She is now at the Portland wharf, ready to commence her future career of usefulness, and starts direct to New Orleans this evening. She is one of the beautifully proportioned, as well as richly furnished, boats yet turned out. The hull is of very superior workmanship, with a remarkably keen, easy model, with a sharp entrance at the bow, but flaring out beautifully from the water lines, yet rather full in the bar-tings, which will impart buoyancy and assist her to rise under the pressure of her power in propelling her ahead. The bottom planks are all fully four inches in thickness, and those along the knuckle are four and a half inches through. All the timbers and planks of the hull, inside and out, as well as all the bulk-heads, are planed smooth, and the timbers have been thoroughly soaked in oil. The hull timbers are all square fastened with three iron bolts, or extra fastenings, through each of the fetlock joints, and along the bilge keelson. The streaks are all double ironed, and the fore and aft bulk-heads so constructed that the bearing of the deck comes on all parts alike. She has ten knuckle chains on an improved plan which equalizes the weight and strain from the center to the sides. These chains do not extend over 18 inches above the main deck. The stem is a solid piece of oak, fully six feet through, and at both bow and stern she has a row of heavy iron breast hooks, and in fact the entire work of the hull is better, smoother, and stronger fastened than any yet built in the West. The Messrs. Howard, the builders, freely state that it is their masterpiece, and we think it has never been excelled. The cylinders, and in regards strength, compactness, and durability, are in keeping with the hull, and we do not think it possible for them to give way or shrink a hair's breadth. They are extra heavy, and go solid through the deck with extra screw-bolts. The keel of the hull of the J. F. Pargoud is 235 feet in length, with 38 feet beam, and 33 feet floor, with 5 feet hold. The guards are fully 16 feet wide, giving her capacity for the burthen of 3,300 bales of cotton.

The engines of the Pargoud are the most perfect specimens ever turned out, even in Louisville, combining strength with beauty, and workiug as smoothly as clock-work. The cylinders are each twenty-nine inches in diameter, with eight feet stroke, to be driven by the new steam pipe and huge boilers, each twenty-eight feet in length and forty inches in diameter, all of extra heavy iron, with flues sixteen inches in diameter, the whole made of the best iron and the best work of Joe Mitchell. The engines were made by Glover & Co., who fitted her out completely with all the latest improvements, including steam capstan and freight hoister. The water wheel is thirty-four feet six inches in diameter, with buckets 14 feet nine inches in length. The iron work was by A. Baker, who always gives satisfaction. The copper and brass iron work, stoves, and entire outfit, was by Jas. A. Bridgeford.

The J. F. Pargoud, as she now appears on the water, is the most beautiful boat afloat, and a glance at the interior of her cabins will convince all that she is equally magnificent, and richly furnished, vieing in costly outfit and elegance with anything ever yet turned out. Capt. Tobin, under whose constant supervision she was built, has spared no expense in having a perfect boat in every respect, and in accordance with the progress of the age, he was equally determined to surpass all others in having a rich and magnificent outfit. Her main and ladies' cabin floors are covered with Royal Wilton double-width carpet, the most costly and rich in pattern, while all the ladies' cabin state-rooms are fitted up in a style of splendor and comfort seldom equalled. Each of the rooms is eight feet square, furnished with closets, wardrobes and mirrors, and the bedsteads are furnished with the finest bedding and bed clothes, with the richest brocatelle and lace curtains for hanglugs, making each room a perfect little bijon. The furniture was manufactured expressly for the Pargoud, all of solid rosewood, the finest and most elaborate in workmanship of any that was ever before made for a steamboat, and we very much donbt if any of the palatial residences of the South are more sumptuously furnished. In fact, the Texas of the Pargond is far better fitted up than the cabins of a majority of boats. Adjoining the Texas is the Captain's room, which, in comfort and gorgeous outfit, is only surpassed by the state-rooms in the ladies' cabin. Below the cabin is, as usual with all Southern boats, a complete nursery and servants' rooms, all comfortably provided and arranged. She is also handsomely furnished with bath rooms and all other conveniences perfect and complete.

The cabin presents the richest and most beautiful appearance of any boat built since the days of the great Eclipse, and she ranks second to her only in size. The painting of the boat, a pure white relieved by a slight etching of gold, we pronounce the best job ever turned out in the West, the state rooms inside having a perfect polish. The entire painting, outside and inside, was faithfully done, adding much to the beauty as well as durability of the joiners' work. The ceiling is lofty, and the skylights tastefully and beautifully relieved by stained glass of chaste patterns and colors. Among the most noticeable features of the boat are the splendid chandeliers, silver ware, china, and glassware, and the pantry outfit the most costly we have ever seen, being uncqualled by that of any other boat yet built. The ladies cabin is furnished with a massive mirror the full size of the cabin built head, and the largest and most magnificent of any that has yet been made for a Western steamer. Nothing can compare with any portion of her outfit, the builders and furnishers all vieing with each other to surpass all former efforts. The pilot house, the ladies cabin, the gift of Mr. Pargoud, was made expressly to his order by Chickering & Co., at a cost of $750—the finest instrument in the West. It was brought to this city by D. P. Faulds & Co., of this city.

The cabin and joiner work of the J. F. Pargoud was by the steam factory of H. McClaran & Co., and we consider it their best effort, and the prettiest and nicest cabin on the river. The painting was by English & Dinwiddie, the most faithful work that we have seen since the Eclipse. They are located in New Albany. The stained glass was the work of Mr. Bloom. The rich carpets, curtains, linens, lace goods, oil-cloths, &c., were furnished by Hite & Small; the upholstery by Henry Wehmhoff, the rich rosewood furniture, the best and most beautiful we have ever seen, was made by John Simon; the mirrors and decorating by Hegan & Escott, and the silver ware, chandeliers, china, glassware, &c., all of which must be seen to be appreciated, were all furnished by the enterprising firm of Walton & Barret. The bells, large and small, including the large one on deck, weighing 1,580 pounds, were all made by Wm. Kaye, of this city.

The J. F. Pargoud was built expressly for the New Orleans and Ouachita river trade, making weekly trips to Monroe and Trenton, leaving New Orleans every Saturday evening, and to judge from her mould and power, we think she will be hard to beat. She starts to New Orleans direct this evening at 4 o'clock, from the Portland wharf, in charge of Capt John W. Tobin, an experienced and very popular, as well as courteous boatman, who deserves, and we hope will command, the fullest success. The boat was planned, built, and furnished altogether under his supervision, and we can safely assert that he commands the best boat afloat. The clerk is Edward Phelps, a young man of address, popular, and well known in the trade. Passengers and shippers can rely upon her departure this evening.

☞The Peytona, from New Orleans, passed Evansville yesterday, with a cargo of sugar, coffee, molasses, and foreign fruit, for this market. We thank the clerk, Mr. Landrum, for a manifest by mail. She is due this evening.

☞The Hastings arrived at St. Louis Sunday, and the Dyscostah and Cheesman departed for the Ohio river.

☞The Coalboat Pilots' Association, in meeting the other day, resolved not to run coalboats for parties owning or controlling tow-boats, if the latter employ Association steamboat pilots.

☞The Diligent, Capt. Cobb, is the coast packet to Leavenworth at 2 o'clock to-day.

☞The Woodford left New Orleans on Monday, the 5th, and the Autocrat on Tuesday, the 6th.

☞We learn from the New Orleans Delta, of Sunday, that the Lewis Whitman came over from the docks and began to receive freight for Mobile. The hull of the Arkansas, sunk last year at Waterloo, was also at the lower landing. The Sioux City goes back for one more trip to St. Louis, and will afterwards enter the Ouachita river trade.

☞The Neptune, with the wrecks of the Fred Tron, the Judge Fletcher, A. H. Sevier, Steve Decatur, and Judge Torrence are due from lower ports, having passed Cairo Tuesday.

☞The Tigress, Capt. Hopkins, left New Orleans Saturday, with a cargo of sugar at 2½ cents, and molasses at $1 25, for Cincinnati.

☞The Planter No. 2, a new boat, was due from Cincinnati yesterday.

THE DIANA FOR NEW ORLEANS.—This evening the magnificent Louisville packet Diana, one of the best built, furnished, and managed boats in the West takes her place in the trade, leaving Portland at 5 o'clock, for New Orleans. During the past summer Capt. Sturgeon, her gallant commander, and sole owner, had her thoroughly refitted and painted, and she now looks brighter and better than ever. Her beautiful cabin has been refurnished with splendid new carpets, oil cloths, &c., by the enterprising firm of Hite & Small. Passengers going South will find the accommodations of the Diana unsurpassed anywhere, while for speed and safety she is alike unsurpassed. Capt Sturgeon is well known for his uniform attention, and the clerk, O. L. Smith, is one of the most courteous and proficient on the river.

FOR CAIRO AND MEMPHIS.—The neat side wheel packet Bracelet, Capt. Duncan, takes her departure to Memphis this evening. She starts from the city wharf, and takes freight and passengers to all way points.

☞The Superior is the mail and passenger packet for Cincinnati and the East at noon to-day, and the Lancaster No. 3, is the packet for Carrollton.

☞Capt. Montgomery, yesterday, was busy hoisting the chimneys on his new boat the New National.

☞The John Gault, Capt. Bunce's famous packet, having been detained, takes her departure to Nashville and all Cumberland river landings, this morning at ten o'clock. The clerk, Kinne Smith, is very attentive and proficient.

☞The Dove came in from Kentucky river yesterday, her first trip for a long time, and to Geo. Woods, the clerk, we are indebted for a manifest. Kentucky river is at a fair stage and falling, the pools, however, being all full.

Commercial.

OFFICE LOUISVILLE COURIER, WEDNESDAY EVENING, Nov. 7, 1860.

The market is quite dull, with only a moderate amount of business doing. Provisions have been in better demand, and at the close the market was firmer, a slight advance having been established in prices. Hogs are quiet, with no disposition on the part of packers to contract until the packing season opens. During the week some few head of light Hogs have been slaughtered, but the season will not be regularly opened until the middle of the month.

We notice this week the first receipt of new Sugar and Molasses. The Sugar is selling at 9¾c and the Molasses sold at 47@48c.

The Money market is unchanged, though the Bankers seem more disposed to accommodate persons who wish to obtain loans. The supply is fully equal to the demand, but outsiders find it difficult to obtain loans. The market for Exchange is quiet, with a moderate demand for Eastern at ¼c premium. The demand for New Orleans is good at ¼c premium.

The weather has been clear and cold but pleasant. The river is rising fast, with an excellent stage of water, and freights have declined to the winter tariff.

Hog slaughtering commenced at Lexington on Monday last. The number killed there so far is small.

At Albion and Grayville, Ill., Hogs are selling from $5@6 for early delivery.

Pork packing has commenced at Dubuque, Iowa, where 12,000 or 15,000 Hogs will be cut this season.

The Clarimati Gazette of this morning has the following in regard to Hogs and Provisions:

Six houses have commenced cutting Hogs, but none of them, so far, have had enough to keep them running steadily, but the weather being favorable, we may expect increased arrivals, and next week the majority, if not all the houses will be running. Hogs have sold for immediate delivery at $6 57½@5, but the latter must be regarded as an extreme rate, from which buyers shrink, and even the inside figure is not paid freely; still at that price good lots are salable. The feeling with regard to the future is more tame than at any previous time within the last month, and there are few buyers for December at $6 50, and not many for the last half of November at $6 50. The majority of packers regard current prices as dangerously high, and their movements are consequently marked by a great degree of caution. There is no old pork in the market. The stock was closed out at $28. Some retail lots of new have been sold at $18. Bacon is dull at 8¾@9¾c for shoulders and 11¾c for rib sides, buyers contending for lower rates. Green meats are held at 9c, 8¾ and 9c for shoulders, sides and hams, with sales of the latter, but 5¾c and 7¾c are the prices offered for the two former.

Our quotations apply to wholesale prices, unless the contrary is specified. A small advance is asked on those quotations for small lots.

ALCOHOL—The market has been dull, and prices are nchanged. We quote at 32c for 76 ₱ cent., 38c for 92 ₱ cent., 40c for 96 ₱ cent., and 41c for 98 ₱ cent.

BARGING AND ROPE—The market for these staples has been exceedingly quiet, with but a small demand. The only transactions we have heard of are 50 pieces power loom Bagging at 15¾c, 25 pieces hand at 14¾c, 110 coils machine Rope at 8c.

BEESWAX—The market has been dull, and prices have declined, with a small demand at 22@23c.

FLOUR AND GRAIN—The market for Flour has been firm during the week, with a large demand for home consumption and shipping.—There has been a stronger feeling on the part of holders, while buyers have purchased more freely. The sales during the week have reached 6,257 barrels, the greater portion of which was sold to go to Georgia at $5 for Superfine, $5 25 @$5 75 for Extra, and $6@$6 25 for Fancy Family brands. The receipts of Wheat have been large during the week. The market during the first of the week was firm, but later it became dull, with strong prospects of a decline, though none was established. The sales have reached 14,350 bushels at $1@$1 15 for prime red and white, though to-day the outside figure could only be obtained for choice lots. There has been a better demand for Corn, with large sales. There was no change in prices. The transactions were 11,900 bushels at 56c for car, 58@60c for mixed, and 60@62c for prime white shelled, sacks included. The receipts of new Corn continue small, there being no disposition on the part of dealers to purchase. The market for Oats has been dull, with sales of 3,859 bushels at 30@32c from wagons, and 39c from store. There is no change in Rye or Barley, with small sales from store at 65c for the former and 90c for Barley. Sales to-day of 510 bbls Flour at $5@$6; 1,560 bushels Wheat at $1@$1 15; 1,000 bushels Corn at 58c; 600 bushels new at 45c, sacks to be returned; 750 bushels Oats at 35 @36c.
